"THE TRAIL."

A CALENDAR of REMINISCENCES.

AUGUST.

Summer friendships at their height.

Vacation days hit the "home stretch."

School-phobia develops.

That last precious week as school looms into view.

SEPTEMBER.

First Friday and more reminders of school.

Labor Day; nightmares dominated by irate teachers and flying books.

10th of September, "Black Friday," and enrollment.

"Blue Monday;" first day of school; end of the world for some.

17th marks the end of the first week of agony softened by new and old friends.

Work has begun "like nobody's business." Brother Hyacinth, C. S. C., our "Franklin D." outlined his recovery act, and there was no Congress to block him (tsk. tsk).

First Senior class meeting; election of Joe Toth as class president.

"X" marks the birth of the S. A. C.

Tribune and News Times correspondents named.

Brother Andrew, C. S. C., a missionary Brother of Holy Cross, lectures on India, the dream of philosophers, or is it a hang-over.

A lottery drive to help athletic fund begins and ends the month. Grand prize — season tickets to N. D. home football games.

OCTOBER.

First Friday — Central Catholic clears its conscience.

Newcomer leaves press as a monthly.

Our library is swelled by a contribution. My, My, but that library has grown since it has left the Sophomore room.

The Marionette Show (Puppets to you) makes a hit at CCHS.

Central Catholic and St. Joseph's Academy reach out and clasp hands. Seniors entertain (cupid was very active) St. Joe Seniors.

Skating parties become a vogue.

Six weeks Exams have shaken many a boy's confidence in life — and so have failures.

NOVEMBER.

Seniors, after heated discussions, and a lot of help, adopt a class ring.

14th marks the debut of CCHS in the "Arrival of Kitty;" no Hollywood offers have come so far.

Seniors begin to dream of a Monogram dance.

St. Joseph's Seniors return compliments to our handsome and strapping seniors.

Juniors shock school by electing class officers, after weeks of silence.

Mr. Thomas P. Neill, a post-graduate at N. D., gets an enthusiastic turnout for his speech classes.

Art also comes to CCHS.

The PD, alias the SAC, has a shakedown. It gets new appointees and its membership is increased as several officers are retired.

Thanksgiving and Castor-oil.

DECEMBER.

Exams, sweet, sweet exams! how do we ever get through them?

Mothers' Club under Mrs. P. Paden comes to the front in activities.

Joe Toth, Senior class president, wins anti-TB contest held under auspices of the speech club.

SAC holds a skating party.

Philip Foxwell, the magician — rabbits and eggs.

Snow Xmas and Vacation.

17th of December and all is quiet on the School Front.

Merry Christmas
Happy New Year . . . .

JANUARY.

3rd ends the "glorious interlude". Some Vacation.

Seniors flash class rings.

Mr. Neill is whipping together a debate team. Such arguments!

Mr. Louis Szabo perplexes his Health Classes by requiring health posters or else —. Many a person's artistic illusions have been shattered after a glance at them.

Brother Canisius returns to us—Thank God. We thought he had died.

Seniors press Monogram Dance plans.

The Davies Light Opera Company thrills CCHS with operettas.

22nd and Monogram Dance are synonymous. Stew-dents dance to Red Maxfield's rhythms. Such dreams! The Palais is some "trucking grounds." (ha ha joke.)

Mr. Neill's speech class produces a representative for the South Bend Rotary Speech Contest.

Exams are here again — so are nightmares. And so ends a semester with the Honor Roll increasing beyond the wildest dreams of Bro. Hyacinth.

A brief interruption of a day.

FEBRUARY.

New Semester finds us without the services of Brother Terrence, C. S. C., but blesses us with the presence of Brother Reginald, C. S. C.

Mr. Tom Neill launches the debate season with Riley as the first on the list.

Lincoln's Day and Washington's Day both

CLASS POEM.

TO '38

I wandered through the realm of dreams
Where Somnus nods his weary head:
A book I saw of mighty themes
In which no mortal ere had read.

I scanned the deeds of you, my friends;
Of you who part from me today;
Of you whose joy with sorrow blends,
Since you must enter life's hard fray.

I saw battle 'gainst great odds;
I saw you fight with all your might;
I saw you writhe beneath the rods
Of life that punished with delight.

I saw you break through thick and thin;
I saw you strive with steely will;
I saw you lose; I saw you win;
I saw you dare life's threat with skill.

I saw you rise to heights of fame;
I saw your glory spreading wide;
I saw the greatness of your name,
The source of all your manly pride.

When I had read this writing grand,
I asked the sprite to show no more;
But left the still Hypnian strand
To meet life's troubles as of yore.

Irvin J. Zielinski.

HISTORY OF CLASS AND SCHOOL.

In 1934, a group of 18 boys entered high school with the aim of establishing higher Catholic education in South Bend. With visions of coming improvements, high hopes and encouragement from two Brothers, these few students pioneered in founding Central Catholic High School. During the four years that followed, the school has advanced from infancy to a state-accredited boys' high school. The students came into the public limelight with the presentation of "Long, Long, Ago." Later that year, basketball inaugurated the athletic program of a nine-game schedule. The newly-founded school newspaper, "The Newcomer," announced the school's colors—gold and green. The school year was closed by a banquet and scholastic awards. Joseph J. McCaffery guided the first student body as president.

Football and a Party of Beauty helped enliven the second year for the sophomore group. The first football game was won. The team was nicknamed the Miami Indians. A biology laboratory, the office, and three new rooms were completed during the year. The year was brought to a close by a picnic and scholastic contests.

The third year found more students in the junior class. Activities, scholastic, athletic, and social, were rounded out into a more complete pattern for school life.

A sense of a complete institution was the thought uppermost in the minds of the seniors as the year opened. The entire enrollment passed the one hundred mark, thus enabling an extensive athletic program. The Newcomer became a monthly publication. Several precedents were established during the year —The Monogram Dance, the St. Joseph Academy-Central Catholic Mixer, and the Central Catholic Invitational Grade School Basketball Tournament.

The school's curriculum included a band and orchestra, debate team, commercial classes.

Due to the kindness of many friends of the school, the library has grown from a few volumes to that of several thousands.

The Mothers' and Patrons' Clubs aided the school in furnishing monograms to those who earned them.

The year was completed with a yearbook — "The Trail" — which took its name from that suggested by the nickname, Indians.

Twenty-two boys are proud to make up the first graduating class of Central Catholic High School.

"THE TRAIL."

find programs but no free days on the docket.

Bob Hanscom and hit "Tale of Two Cities" leaves an impression on CCHS.

The meal ticket at the Rotary Club ends for John Lipinski. He sounds his Swan Song as he introduces Dave Farabaugh as the new Junior Rotarian.

CCHS's negative debate squad defeats Riley.

The fresh Juniors spin a few Valentine ditties with St. Joe Juniors, and line up their chances for next year.

Prof. Hull of N. D. lectures on weather. Some weather.

The Physics Lab. is up and coming under Brother Reginald's tutelage.

The debate team, and this means both minus and plus, put CCHS on the map by their eloquence.

Mr. Sessler of N. D. lectures on Art and drops a few hints on selection of vocations.

Seniors lay plans for an annual. The annual staff is elected.

MARCH.

Ugh — Exams again.

Lent begins and the affirmative team has its first debate.

A drive to equip a Senior Room is started with a raffle for machine lathe.

Mr. Strickler lectures on "Wild Life" and as a result produces an extra early attack of spring fever.

Central Catholic sponsors an Invitational Basketball meet for the Parochial Grade Schools.

Seniors hear lecture on TB in the auditorium of South Bend Central.

The year Book "The Trail", misconstrued serveral times to be the "Trial" is the main interest of the Seniors.

Seniors get a day off to solicit ads for the annual; they are also told that they can take time out from classes at any time if they can produce advertisements.

Athletes get their Monograms. Awards go to eighteen. It is a surprise how manly manly chests can get.

Mr. Szabo is already lining up his football hopes for next year.

Spring Fever gets a serious set back when a blizzard almost snows the town in.

That very same day we get a "Safety" lecture plus still pictures.

CCHS gets tuberculine tests. As a result, some boys are scared silly.

March ends in a flare of photography and not just mere candid shots.

APRIL.

A positively saintly First Friday.

CCHS becomes Wrangler conscious as it prepares for the annual Wranglers Oratorical contest at N. D. — John Lipinski wins State Championship and two cups.

Parents' club hears CCHS's brilliant debaters, but they are unduly prejudiced in favor of the affirmative to the chagrin and disgrace of the negative.

Bro. Reginald organizes a Science Club, with Joe Toth at its head.

Seniors plan on a Junior-Senior Prom.

The Valedictorian and Salutatorian are appointed.

Prof. Henry Hinton of N. D. chemistry Lab. lectures on iron and steel.

A school Oratorical contest under Mr. Tom Neill's guidance has been announced.

Palm Sunday.

Vacation begins a day earlier than scheduled.

Happy Easter.

The 19th and back to school.

Exams again. Will they never stop??

The annual hits the press.

Preliminaries in speech contest held.

MAY.

The beginning of the end, or the end of the beginning, which??

This is too beautiful a month to waste one's breath on!

May, and young men's fancies lightly turn to thoughts of vacation.

Francis Onderdonk lectures.

Work on Senior-Junior Prom begun.

The "soon will be" alumni and the 1938 squad fight it out.

Speech finals are over.

Mmmmmm! Mmmmmm! Just saw "The Trail". Some Class!!!

Ah, the end is in sight — and so are exams.

Some excitement! the Senior play was a scream.
